FOREWORD

"We look before and after." And who shall not sigh for the days that are never to return! Those days of poignant loveliness, of promises yet unbroken, of dreams yet unfulfilled! We could not record the whole of the year's experiences for you, but here and there we have captured a glimpse that will hold for you the joys and responsibilities, the friendships and frolics that you knew at Libbey. To you the members of Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred Forty joyously presents this Edelian.

GERTRUDE MAUDE BROWN

dication

To one who really loves his work the profession of teaching furnishes the richest rewards that one can imagine; for it stimulates and inspires constantly as a compensation for the effort and intensity of purpose that the earnest teacher brings to it. Surely everyone at Libbey is unanimous in believing that Miss Maude Brown is one to whom teaching has been a source of great service to others and happiness to herself. Born in Britton, Michigan, Miss Brown received her elementary and high school education in the Toledo Public Schools. Her college work, both undergraduate and graduate, was pursued at the University of Toledo, Chicago University, the University of Michigan, and Columbia University; and her teaching experience, before she came to Libbey, was gained at Erie School, Waite (now Roosevelt) and Lincoln, where she taught at various times all grades from the third through the eighth. Her love of traveling and nature study have taken her into many interesting places, while her interest in handwork, her gracious entertainment of friends, and her devotion to her family have made her home life a joyous one. Distinguished as having been at one time the president of the Toledo Teachers' Association, Miss Brown has also worked often on committees for curriculum building and school progress. As teacher of English, adviser of the Junior Friendship Club, and Dean of Sophomore girls, she has endeared herself to a great many of us who admire her for her sincerity, her kindness, and her ability. Thus it is with great satisfaction and sincere respect that the Senior Class of Nineteen Hundred Forty dedicates this Edelian to Gertrude Maude Brown.

SUPERINTENDENT

To believe firmly in one's own conviction, to have the strength to convert those convictions into activities, and to possess the patience to await the fruition of one's plans are qualities which mark a man of genius. To the students and faculty of the Toledo Public Schools, our superintendent, Mr. Edward L. Bowsher, has constantly represented integrity, strength, and patience. For them he has been a wise administrator; to them he has been a loyal leader. It is indeed with much pride in the achievement of Mr. Bowsher and with much respect for his policy of steady advancement for our school system that the senior class of Libbey High School congratulates him and heartily wishes him great success.

HAROLD E. WILLIAMS

PRINCIPAL

During the sixteen years that Libbey High School has been in existence two very important things have happened. The school has grown in size, in progress, and in importance; and in equal proportion have grown the efficiency and service of the man who is in charge of it. Willing to meet every need of student, or teacher, or patron; unmindful of his own time or comfort, our principal, Mr. Harold E. Williams, has kept pace with every new step in education, has fostered high ideas within our school, and has been always an example to us of kind and gracious living. Pledging our loyalty and devotion to him and to Libbey, the Class of Nineteen Forty bids him farewell with affectionate regret.

OUR TOMORROW

Today we stand between two golden worlds,
The world that is our shining yesterday
And that new, magic world which now unfurls
Its banners to the winds, and points the way.

The first with glowing moments is engraved;
With friendships, long remembered, sweet and true;
With games, on battle fields, both lost and saved;
With laughter, and with tears of acrid rue.

The other world which opens now its door,
Resplendent with horizons rimmed with gold,
Makes questions rise. What will it have in store?
What broader avenues? What hopes unfold?

But, confidently, we reach out to hold
The brightest star and claim it, all in fun.
To us there is no thought of being old.
We mint new coins from each day's glowing sun.

To us there is no fire without heat,
To us there is no flower without perfume,
To us there is no word such as defeat,
To us there is no failure and no doom.

For us, tomorrow's world is just ahead.
We rise and go to meet its radiant gleams
With eyes uplifted, feet with steady tread,
To vast achievements, far beyond our dreams.

JEAN RENSHAW,
Class Poet.

SIGNIFICANT SENIORS

Read from lower left around to picture in the center.
1. Are Bill and Fred afraid of Sally and Betty? 2. Bill Priest and Helen and Dick and Betsy Saalfield. Two of Libbey's twosomes. 3. Just a couple of "Harper's Bazaar" fans. 4. Betty, the camera fiend! 5. Libbey's policemen—the L. L. L.'s 6. "Snow time ain't no time to—swim, Betty." 7. Miriam's diet is lucky for Marty and Jeanne. 8. Worrying about the community chest speech, Eleanor? 9. Jean, Lisa, Helen and Vera with their "Ipana" smiles. 10. Harriet Parker! Laughing at your own jokes? 11. Who ya smilin' at Jean? 12. Three is a crowd, Clarence. Can't you take a hint from Ted and Lenore? 13. Don Bauman and Bill Heston. 14. "Double or nothing," say Teddy Schmitt and Donna Klinepeter. 15. "Too much in love to break away." 16. Betty Bundt and her favorite mount.

VALEDICTORY

The immortal William Shakespeare has written:

"All the world's a stage,
And all the men and women merely players:
They have their exits and their entrances;
And one man in his time plays many parts,
His acts being seven ages."

For the past four years we have been training ourselves for those roles which we shall ultimately play in life's drama. Libbey has been our dramatic school where our talents have been discovered, developed, and perfected. For many of us, tonight marks the completion of this period of understudying; while to some will come the opportunity of extending this training.

These years have been hampered in many cases by the economic difficulties in which the world finds itself today. In spite of these obstacles which have stood in our path, we have struggled to gain our present status as seniors.

To you, our parents, who have sacrificed much in order that we might have this training, we extend our most sincere thanks. We realize that it is impossible to repay the many sacrifices and kindnesses for which we are indebted to you. We also express our gratitude to the faculty who have watched us so well along many lines, and especially do we appreciate the guidance of Mr. Williams, who has served us so faithfully as our head coach during these years.

As yet we do not know what permanent part we are destined to play in life's drama. We have already completed the first two ages through which we must pass. Even though it is not a beautiful picture that Shakespeare presents— of the infant mewling and puking in the nurse's arms, we know that it is an accurate one and are glad enough to be not of that period.

And then the whining school boy with his satchel

And shining morning face, creeping like a snail unwillingly to school.

That age is much nearer to us, and no matter how zealous we were, there were moments when we crept unwillingly to tasks that were assigned us. Perhaps we may even have whined a bit, but that is a natural part of our development, for we do not boast perfection. But we are not looking back, but on into the years that are ahead. I need not quote Shakespeare's other stages more than to remind you of the lover, sighing like a furnace, of the soldier with his rough beard and rough speech, or of the justice, full of years and complacency, uttering wise saws and modern instances.

Many of us shall play the role of lovers wherein the ecstasy of romance will be the greatest thing life holds for us. The next part, that of the soldier, is one which is to be seriouly considered today. With war's ever-darkening shadow constantly looming on the horizon, each and all of us pray that none of the graduates of this class will be called upon to don a soldier's uniform and be compelled to face the horrors of present day warfare.

We have yet to play our three remaining roles which perhaps are the fullest and the richest. First the part of the justice wherein we reach maturity and attain the highest pinnacle of our success. Then, that of the "lean and slippered pantaloon" which gradually fades into the last age—our second childhood. However, whether our names be known throughout the world, or whether we play only a minor role, may it be the aim of every graduate here tonight to play his part to the best of his ability.

And now the house lights are dimmed and we, fortified and strengthened by the knowledge and learning which we have acquired, stand ready, waiting for the curtain to rise on that drama which is directed by the Supreme Director to whom everyone must yield and without whose guidance no actor could be a success.

NATIONAL HONOR

The citadel which every freshman who is an earnest and ambitious student endeavors to reach is membership in the National Honor Society. The odds against him are great; but the harder the fight, the sweeter the accomplishment. There is no greater thrill than that which tingles your spine when, at a mass meeting in the auditorium, Mr. Williams announces your name and you proudly take your place in the front row of seats, reserved for new members of the Honor Society. The requisites for membership in this club are Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service. To be eligible one must stand in the upper third of the senior class or the first fifteenth of the junior class. The list of those eligible as far as scholarship is concerned is given to every teacher, who then chooses those twelve students whom he considers to be outstanding in Leadership, Character, and Service. To belong to the National Honor Society is a decided asset in later life; for what could be a higher recommendation when seeking a position than to state that you were marked for honors, not by one, but by several teachers who had known and worked with you for four years? Membership in the society permits you to wear a mark of distinction: a ring or pin upon which is engraved a keystone and a torch, the symbols of the society. The keystone represents the base of all education, and the torch is an incentive to society members to light the way to learning for others. For the induction of the new members of the past year, forty-seven seniors and twenty-five juniors, Robert Freeman, chairman of the program committee, secured the Reverend Henry McKenzie of Westminster Presbyterian Church as guest speaker. In his address Mr. McKenzie discussed the four cardinal objectives of the National Honor Society; and to make the ideals clearer in the minds of those future aspirants to the highest honor attainable in any high school, he gave examples of Character, Leadership, Scholarship, and Service. Of these, scholarship is the chief aim of Libbey's Honor Society. By reading those books which are our richest heritage from past centuries and past generations, the members of the organization hope to acquire a useful store of knowledge to be used most advantageously in future years. Any school which fails to emphasize the great importance of character building has not fulfilled the obligation which it owes to every boy and girl. Along with character goes leadership; for, in as large a high school as Libbey, one's character must be outstanding before he can lead his class. To be specific, leadership is "the exertion of the power of personality which calls men to follow when he shall lead." Finally, comes the last of the National Honor's high ideals. It is service to others; not only to your friends and relatives, but to the school, to the church, to the community, and to the home. In honor of the newly initiated members, the club had a roast. This affair was planned and carried out by Bill Heston and his social committee. One of the most important committees of the National Honor Society is that of elections, headed by Jeanne Stevens. It is the duty of this committee to hold both junior and senior class elections, and to count the votes, determining the victorious candidates. This year Principal Harold E. Williams and Eugene Hunt, the advisers of the organization, were ably assisted by William Dentel, president; Jean Schroeder, vice-president; and Katherine Retzke, secretary-treasurer, the officers elected last year by members of the society.

EDELIAN

Annual! Annals! Records! Year-book—what you will! It is our Edelian, and we love it for it spresent thrill and its future possibility of reminding us of our four previous years at Libbey. In and out of every room of the school over and over again went the staff of nineteen-forty; again and again they checked the spelling of the name of every student; seriously they interviewed each teacher, and affectionately they inscribed quotations for all the seniors. Snapshots were snapped, layouts were worried over, and cover designs caused anxious moments; but at last as the Senior Banquet approached the Edelian appeared, presented by the editor-in-chief, Evala Dais, and distributed by Anna Mae Jimison circulation manager. Assisting Evala in her editorial duties were the associate editor, Marjorie Francis; Sally Schwartz and Laura Nakagawa, Senior Editors; Ruth Enright and Jean Renshaw, Class Editors; Florence Wandtke and Helen Aiken, Faculty Editors; Mary Dotson and Betty Jo Wickerham, Club Editors; Donald Lampe and Tony Pizza, Athletic Editors; Miriam Mehrling, Snap Shot Editor. Helping the business were Anna Mae Jimison, Circulation Manager, and Ethel Schnieder, Advertising Manager, who were assisted by Shirley Heinz, Norma Hemsoth, Virginia Bangoff, Catherine Sperber, Flo Luella Strayer, and Richard Cook. As in former years the splendid scenic views in the opening sections of the Edelian were drawn by the boys in the Architectural Drawing classes of Mr. Packer. Those who submitted drawings were Ed Cumberworth, Nelson Musch, Paul Woods, and James Younkman. The success of the year book is due in no small measure to the energetic and earnest cooperation of the teachers who supervised the building of it. Miss Payne, as snap-shot adviser was pleasantly constant in her search for stories in pictures; Mr. Martin, business adviser, efficiently steered the financial course of the annual; as editorial manager and director, Miss Dusha cheered and hurried everyone; while Principal Harold E. Williams as adviser "extraordinaire" always counselled everyone wisely and well.

CRYSTAL

Have you kept up with the news of your school? If not, then you haven't been buying or reading the Crystal. This Libbey High School paper is given to us in ten entertaining issues every year. In every publication there is a calendar which tells us when and where every coming event is to take place. Class projects such as special scrapbooks, models, and notebooks, and society projects, such as dances, teas, and other special programs, are reviewed for us. Recorded in these papers are the results of all basketball and football games, as well as of tennis, track, golf, and swimming tournaments. Each quarter we eagerly look over the honor roll, even when we know our names won't be there. New Libbeyites and those of the alumni who do something unusual are mentioned in the Crystal. The writer of an unusually good poem or theme gets to see his work in print. The Krystal Kracks column always has something in it about which we laugh (that is unless its about ourselves); for this column contains all the gossip which can be dug up about anybody, students and teachers alike. This extraordinary paper has had for the year as its editors-in-chief, Betty Bundt and Phillip Luetke. The assistant editor was Martha Sisson; the newspaper correspondent, Betsy Saalfield; the news editors were Lois Ashley and Katherine Retzke; the literary advisers are Miss Florence Gerdes and Mr. Williams, our principal; the snapshot adviser is Miss Gertrude Payne. The editorials are taken care of by Harriet Parker and Vera Retzke; the business, by Ardis Leininger and Leola Rodenhauser; the exchange, by Eunice Gamby and Bessie Stager; and the feature stories, by Glentie Etchen and Robert Yaekel. All juniors in the Crystal class make up the junior staff, and all students taking journalism are the reporters. The efficiency of this staff is proved in the success and popularity of their production, an ever popular school project.

PERIES

Chips marking their progress on the social calendar flew rapidly as the Peries blazed their way through the school year, always remaining at least one chip ahead of the crowd, always seeking the new and entertaining, and always succeeding in reaching their goal—in other words, true to their motto, "Secundus Nulli." Off to a gay start with lunchbaskets, canteens, and their hatchets tucked under their arms, the girls held a roast at Side-Cut Park just before they attended the Central game. A few weeks later, they had progressed far enough on their trip to present one of the peppiest mass meetings of the year. Feeling that they needed a change from the athletic life, they turned their minds to a more intellectual train of thought, and they arranged a tea in the school library, with a representative from Dennison University as guest speaker. Later, a tour of Toledo's Museum of Art was made, and a lecture on the exhibit was given by Miss Anderson. This was followed by a supper, prepared in the Museum's kitchen. Climbing continuously upward, the girls finally attained the highest point and with it, the Peries greatest event of the year—the "Second Annual Skirt and Sweater Swing," held at the Hotel Secor. Suddenly a turn in the path appeared; and the group found their trail less public. During this passing of time, two private entertainments were arranged. The first was a party at Calumet Temple; and the second was the homeward stretch and the parting of the ways for the seniors and their underclassmen—the annual farewell banquet. The capable and ever faithful guide of the group was Miss Dusha; and the cabinet members were Betsy Saalfield, president; Sally Schwartz, vice-president; Betty Bundt and Margaret Kitzmiller, secretaries; Marjorie Francis, censor; Jeanne Stevens, treasurer; and Jeannette Bernard, chaplain.

PHILS

The Phils! As peppy a group of girls as any one could hope to find, always seeking new ideas and always quick for action. Father Time didn't move quickly enough to leave them in the dust; and all year a constant flow of activities, both studious and entertaining, marked their calendar. Tips on character, clothing, and manners were given throughout their literary programs, which were entitled "Personality Plus." Early in the fall, bright red cardigans were promenaded through the halls; for they were the first club sweaters of the year. Then came the rush of activities. A roast was held at Pearson Park, a skating party was given at Memorial Hall, the mass meeting for the Waite football game was under their auspices, and several doughnut sales were sponsored. Finally, the day of days for the Phils arrived—that of their "Back to School" dance. This year it was presented at the Maumee River Yacht Club, and was a good send off for the new year. Then one day, traces of straw were seen in the girls' hair. Surely enough, the Phils had had a hay ride. At this time, the fateful day for the pledges arrived, and they were tried and proved at their initiation. Jumping from one type of entertainment to the other, a committee planned a Mothers' and Teachers' tea. The program included musical selections and reviews of famous women. It was at this affair that the seniors received tiny gold bracelets, their senior gifts. Following this was a splash party, and then, the final event of the year, a banquet, given in honor of the graduating seniors. The faithful advisers were Miss Gerdes and Miss Gosline. The officers this year were Martha Sisson, president; Jean Knott, vice-president; Helen Ruch, and Betty Blinn, recording and corresponding secretaries, respectively; Janet Scharer, treasurer; Betty Holderman, senior censor; Lucille Rickard, junior censor; Marion Scharer, chaplain; and reporter, Ardis Leininger.

ZETS

With sparkling eyes and smiling lips, the Zets may look back to this year with pride. The club's activities were many and were participated in with enthusiasm by the members. The annual roast was held during the autumn at Pearson Park shelter house. The year's programs were ably planned by Thays Dow and Betty Thompson, the main topic being, "How to Develop a Personality." As usual, there were several doughnut sales to replenish the club's treasury. Thus, the entertaining and worthwhile activities of the Zets were carried out. Initiation for seventeen girls was held during February. After the ritual, all of the members were served refreshments. The dance, the Patchwork Prance, had unusually novel decorations and programs. This annual affair was given April 19, at Trilby Log Cabin, under the leadership of Helen Snyder and her committee, and proved to be one of the best. These activities plus many interesting meetings were guided with skill and energy by Miss DeLisle and Miss Eberth, who has become the club's new adviser in the absence of Miss Henderson. The Zets also collected tax stamps so that a silver tea service might be secured for the benefit of the literary clubs. A banquet was given May 24, at the Women's Building in honor of the senior members of the organization. This was the last activity of the Zets and was handled efficiently by the committee in charge. The capable presiding officers were Ruth Kramp, president; Helen Snyder, vice-president; Audry Sprengal, recording secretary; Delores Harp, treasurer; Dorothy Henneman, sergeant-at-arms; Betty Thompson and Thays Dow, censors; and Virginia Greenawalt, chaplain. With these officers and advisers, a year of fun and achievement has been added to the records of the Zetalethean Literary Society.

Q. D'S. AND FORUM

Lively blue and flashy orange are the favorite colors of the two high-spirited literary organizations that the senior boys will regret to leave. The many joyful moments in their planning of dances and roasts, that make the social life so full of pleasure, will not be forgotten. The Q. D. cabinet consisted of Willie Tappen, president; William Dentel, vice-president; Dick Trumbull, secretary; Norm Steusloff, treasurer; and Lynn Georgia, sergeant-at-arms. The Forum staff of officers was led by Brandon Neal, president; Dick Shotwell, vice-president; George Morley, secretary; Dick Rimer, treasurer. These officers were guided by the advisers, Mr. Weinstock and Mr. Leiser of the Forum; and Mr. Baker and Mr. Cony of the Q.D.'s, all of whom were extremely valuable in directing these societies. The Q. D.'s started their social year with a roast at Buttonwood in October. Later, a swimming party was held in collaboration with the Forum. The whole school was entertained at the Q.D. skating party at Memorial Hall. On May 4, came the big event of the social year, the Q.D. Shindig. The committee for the dance was headed by Bill Dentel. The fast moving Forum parade began with a roast. After digestions were back in working condition, Brandon Neal appointed a committee for the Forum Fantasy given at Trilby Log Cabin. Dick Shotwell was in charge of the arrangements for the social event. They presented a truly fine dance and reported a nice profit for the first time in three years. A memorable banquet closed the active year of the Forum. In its own splendid way, each of these societies contributed greatly to the social life and to the character of Libbey. The excellent records made this year will be high incentives to the Forum and Q.D. members of the many years to come.

SENIOR FRIENDSHIP CLUB

Whiz! and the Senior Friendship Club was off to a good start. This club group, organized for the purpose of promoting character, personality, and a more friendly attitude among the students, is headed by Katherine Retzke as president; Helen Michaels as vice-president; Leola Rodenhauser as secretary; and Carolyn Goodman as treasurer. Good times and hard work were combined to make a most pleasurable year for this society. During the earlier part of the year the girls sponsored a tea which was most successful, complimenting the mothers. Martha Sisson, the chosen representative for the Forum, a program scheduled each year to promote activities both social and educational, throughout the city, did a fine piece of work arranging our school's participation in the weekly meetings. Another program worthy of notable mention was the recognition service which is performed annually. At this time newly appointed members agreed to follow the rules of the Girl Reserves' code. During the weeks of Lent, the Friendship girls undertook the responsibility of presenting to the school the Lenten services which are given for the benefit of the student body. Several clergymen of renown in our city discussed religion and moral training. A play of much acclaim, which was given by the Loyal Libbey Lawsonites, reached its success only through the combined efforts of the Senior Friendship and the L.L.L.'s. The Senior Friendship girls were responsible for costuming, scenery, and makeup. The enthusiastic attendance at the play was reward enough for their hard work. Several times during the course of the year many needy families were helped out of despairing difficulties through the generous contribution of the girls of the club. The efficient adviser of the club was Miss Gertrude Payne.

JUNIOR FRIENDSHIP CLUB

During the course of the year the Junior Friendship Club, headed by Miss Maude Brown, adviser; Marjorie King, president; Jeanette Treter, vice-president; Kathleen Sund, secretary; Margaret Meyer, treasurer; Patricia Meyer, chaplain, strove to promote more friendly relations among the girls at Libbey High School. In accordance with this purpose they adopted the motto, "How to win friends and keep them." To organize a more friendly attitude toward other people many programs of interest were planned, which not only helped character, but also personality development. The first program scheduled on the social calendar was a Co-ed Ball held in October. This annual masquerade, which is attended by all the girls in the school, has proved to be an excellent way by which new members become acquainted with former members. The Y.W.C.A., whose purpose is to promote friendly relations and Christian ideals, is often a meeting place for different Girl Reserve troops throughout the city. One of the annual Friendship parties was held in the Y.W.C.A. and proved to be very entertaining. Mrs. Wooden, of the girl's Vocational High School, presided at one of the meetings, her topic of discussion being vocation. Many valuable ideas were given to the girls which helped them to discover their hidden talents and interests. The club does much social work outside the school as well as among the students. Together with helping needy families, the Friendship Clubs had charge of a given number of orphans from the Miami Children's Home, who were supplied with presents and cards on the more important holidays. That the students are interested in the activities of the Friendship Clubs is demonstrated by the fact that each year there is an increasing number of applicants for membership.

JUNIOR AND SENIOR FRIENDSHIP

The Junior and Senior Friendship Clubs have done many outstanding things during the course of the year. The two capable advisers, Miss Maude Brown of the Junior Club and Miss Gertrude Payne of the Senior Club gave much time and effort toward making their organizations most successful. Both clubs have as their motto, "How to win friends and keep them." Kathryn Retzke, in her capacity as president of the Senior group, and Marjorie King as president of the Junior group, together with the minor officers, accomplished a tremendous amount of work this year. The programs organized were both entertaining and constructive. Whenever an assistant is needed the friendship girls are always the first to answer the call. Numerous needy families were aided by gifts from both clubs. This year, as is the usual custom, the Senior Girl Reserve Girls gave a candle recognition service. The purpose of this annual program is that of formally inducting new members into the various Friendship groups. Before the candle ceremony, a speech was given by Miss Herler, of the Y. W. C. A., emphazing the ideals of the Girl Reserve. Following this the Senior Club took over the program. Twelve members of the group gave speeches which dealt with the various phases of the Girl Reserve code. The Junior and Senior Friendship Clubs of Libbey High School are a composite of Libbey leaders who have profound ambitions and ideals.

SOPHOMORE FRIENDSHIP

Like a jack-in-the-box whose cover is suddenly released, the Sophomore Friendship clubs began their activities this year. The high ideals of this type of organization, plus the enthusiastic reports of the good times from members of previous years, have made many students desire membership in this association which is affiliated with the Young Women's Christian Association. Because of the number of girls desiring admittance, two clubs were formed. The capable officers of Miss Irwin's group were Jo Ann Peters, president; Helen Lloyd, vice-president; Margaret Oberla, secretary; Jean Cassidy, treasurer; and Jacqueline Denzig, chaplain. Although the school period was shortened, many interesting programs were carried out by the girls during the remaining weeks. A get-acquainted meet was held at school so that each girl might become better known to the others. A skating party at the Young Women's Christian Association was given February twenty-first. Merry conversation and laughter were heard on this night by all who attended. Reverend Smith conducted a panel discussion during one of the meetings, his topic being the club's motto, "How to make friends and keep them." Many new facts and interesting ideas were brought out by Mr. Smith, and these were later discussed by the girls. Several successful doughnut sales were given by this same organization. The Sophomore Friendship groups also participated with the Hi-Y groups and Friendship clubs of the city in the Sunday forums conducted at the Young Men's Christian Association. Many outstanding speakers spoke on problems vital to the youth of today. The group which was advised by Miss Gosline, not to be outdone by their friends, also have done much in the social line this year. A fair sized sum was added to the treasurer's report after a most successful doughnut sale. So that the members might become better known to each other, a get-to-gether party was held November fourteenth at the Young Women's Christian Association. At one of their meetings, three of the older Friendship girls talked to this group about their good times at Camp Walbridge, and encouraged the girls to go this summer. On February seventeenth, large splashes were made by representatives of the club at the Young Women's Christian Association swimming pool. Programs of historical facts about the origin of the Friendship club during the year proved to be very interesting and intellectual. The members learned what several of the Libbey boys "Ideal Girl" was from Bill Dentel, Bill Cox, Jim Carrithers, and George Hagedon. These young men gave their opinion about the active girl, her character, clothes, hairdress, and personality. The school was clamoring for more and more of the unique pins made by the members of this club. Who ever heard of making pins with macaroni alphabet letters?. But that is only one of the clever ideas which was carried out this year. The group was led by Joyce Menke, president; Nancy Mac Phie, vice-president; Dorothy Sparks, secretary; Dorothy Koring, treasurer; and Wilma Larger, as chaplain. The advisers are to be congratulated for their splendid effort in supervising the girls and for the ideals which have been established. Because of the girls' achievements this year, we can expect even more in the future from this same energetic group.

SENIOR HI-Y

Under the kindly guidance of Principal Harold E. Williams, who was assisted by Mr. Ivan Smith of the South Side Y. M. C. A., the Senior Hi-Y boys rounded out the final year of the training in character development that they have received here at Libbey. Through the efforts of the advisers, an inspiring and practical program was arranged for the year, one of the most outstanding and valuable items of which was the vocational guidance conference, conducted in April and participated in by the members of the Junior Hi-Y also. It was at this conference that the boys were privileged to interview representatives of various trades and professions which might serve as avenues of work after school or college. In the same vein was the auditorium meeting at which the speaker was Mr. Donald Parks, Personnel Director of the University of Toledo. Other meetings of interest included as speakers, Miss Martha Gosline, who related her experience in France and Germany at the outbreak of the war in September; and Mr. Lehr Fess, Parliamentarian of the House of Representatives, who explained the progress of the passing of bills into laws in Congress. Quite different, but interesting also, was the trip the club enjoyed to the Frozen Foods Plant. Culminating a year happy in social contacts and rich in stimulating experiences for all the boys was the Mothers' and Sons' Banquet held in May. The officers who planned this affair as well as aiding Mr. Williams in all the projects of the club were Donald Lampe, president; Anthony Pizza, vice-president; Philip Leutke, secretary; Hugh Tadlock, treasurer; and Glen Meyer, sergeant-at-arms.

JUNIOR HI-Y

With their vivid green sweaters to indicate the interest and vitality that accompanies youthful enthusiasm the boys of the Junior Hi-Y club have displayed throughout the year their qualities of citizenship and service. Under the capable guidance of Principal Harold E. Williams, Mr. Andrew Leiser, and Mr. Ivan Smith the boys developed and enjoyed a useful and enjoyable program for the year. Cooperating with the Senior Hi-Y group they participated in a vocational guidance project, engaged in the Sunday forums, and listened to the guest speakers whose purpose was to strengthen the moral fibre of their listeners. Socially the activities of the Junior Hi-Y were varied. A swimming party at the Y. M. C. A. and a much enjoyed spring picnic added zest to the year's program; while the treasury was augmented by a successful skating party held during the winter at Memorial Hall and by a spring dance given in the Libbey gym. To bring their year to a close, a banquet was given for the mothers with the combined Hi-Y Clubs in the school. The capable officers of the Junior Hi-Y were James Carrithers, president; Jack Lawrence, vice-president; William Cox, secretary; Warren Miller, treasurer; and Anthony Pizza, sergeant-at-arms. During the summer, William Shafer and James Bicker will represent Libbey at the State Hi-Y training camp at Bunkhaven, Ohio, for ten days in August. From July 20 to 24 William Cox was selected to attend the third National Hi-Y Congress at Oberlin College. Camp Storer will be attended by William Mikesel and John Tygart during the week of August 24. In case any of these boys can not attend, Eugene Phillips and Eugene White will be alternates.

SOPHOMORE HI-Y... ACTIVITIES

Organized after the Christmas holidays and initiated by the junior and senior groups, the Sophomore Hi-Y, composed of the school's most promising leaders, was on its way to an interesting program that will find its development continuing for two and a half years. Although many of the meetings of this club were held in conjunction with those of the Junior and Senior Hi-Y's, the sophomores had their own problems of learning the ideals of their club which they are to carry on as they become senior leaders. Guiding them in their seeking after the truths of Christian living were Principal Harold E. Williams, Mr. Keifer, and Mr. Smith, as advisers. The clubs officers were Jim Warwick, president; Williston O'Connell, vice-president; George Hagedon, secretary; Jack Felkey, treasurer; and Bill Schmeltz, sergeant-at-arms. Outstanding among the activities of the society were a successful skating party, a party for the Sophomore Friendship Club, and numerous talks by prominent men of the city. The final event of the year was the Mothers' and Sons' banquet . . . Room 109! The most popular room of the school, where can be found all of the business which makes it the home of the Activities Department. When any club or class wants publicity, mimeographing, or printing done, its members invariably go to Mr. Charles Martin, the head of this department, who sees that their wishes are carried out. Since this particular room has so many important duties to perform, Mr. Martin has chosen as his aids several of his students who have grown familiar with the responsibilities of the department. Assisting him during the year were Anna Mae Jimison, who managed Edelian subscriptions; Ethel Ann Schneider, who took care of all advertising; Shirley Heinz, who headed all ticket sales; and Dick Cook, who had charge of mimeographing and printing. Counselling Mr. Martin was the principal, Mr. Williams, who used this department as an index of the engrossing and splendid progress of Libbey's activities.

SPANISH CLUB AND GERMAN CLUB

Old Spain, with its quaint villages and colorful customs, seems to have lured a number of our Libbey students into studying such topics of interest as the music, romance, and culture of Spain, and to have urged them to increase their knowledge of her attractive and picturesque background. As a source of material, the club bought subscriptions to two Spanish magazines, "El Eco" and "La Luz." To keep up the club's prestige, a skating party was sponsored through the efforts of the committee of Helen Michaels, chairman; Teddy Schmitt, Donna Klinepeter, and Dorothy Brisbin. The advisers of the club, Miss Russell and Miss Coehrs, were great aids in helping to develop the activities of the club, and their helpfulness was appreciated by all. The officers: president, Harriet Parker; vice-president, Pearl Dunlap; secretary, Lois Ashley; and treasurer, Joyce Heuerman, hope that the society will always maintain a high standard, and stimulate a desire for culture . . . With German becoming more and more important in the study of medicine and all types of engineering, the German Club, whose purpose is to increase the interest of its members in the arts, language, and customs of Germany, has become keenly interested in the language. Throughout the year they discussed, at their bi-monthly meetings, the fanciful songs, dances, and customs of the German people, giving special attention to German music. Several musical members entertained the club by playing various German songs. Along the social lines, the organization sponsored a skating party, a roast arranged by Ruth Schultz, and an annual banquet. The officers were Bill Heston, president: Ruth Schultz, vice-president; Donna Pollex, secretary; and Bill Keller, treasurer. Friendship and loyalty were constant factors of all the work during these two semesters which were as successful as always through the efforts of the officers and members of the German Club and the capable adviser Miss Lok.

LATIN HONOR AND FRENCH CLUB

Intelligence, yes, but not before personality! Though a grade of "A" or "B" is necessary to make a student eligible for membership in both the Latin Honor and French Club, many of the school's most active members must have attained these honors. Latin Honor students must have two consecutive "A's" followed by "B's". Mrs. Burton is the most capable adviser of the Latin Honor. The year's officers appointed by her were Erma-Alice Schultz, president; Lois Campbell, vice-president; and William Shafer, secretary-treasurer. Each year medals are awarded for the best entries in the Latin exhibit as well as for the outstanding Latin student of the year, who was Betty Terriss. Last year Mrs. Burton's Latin exhibit won the highest award to Latin classes in Ohio; namely, the Hildesheim vase. The award was given to the school and to Mrs. Burton because of outstanding work in the Latin language as evidenced by the standing of recent graduates of Libbey in the classics in college; because of coordination of Latin with other departments in Libbey; because of recognition by publishers of text books of wide circulation. The French Club met throughout the year on the first and third Mondays of each month. Miss Krueger, Libbey's "professeur de francais," headed the group in the capacity of adviser. The club officers of the year were Charles Grah, president; Thays Dow, vice-president; Marilyn Ruch, secretary; and Donald Bauman, treasurer. The instructive entertainment of the year, which consisted of French plays, discussions on travels, cities, and customs, was presented under the direction of the club censors, Alma Stoiber, Florence Wandtke, Audrey Keilholtz, and Juanita Ramsey. In the way of outside activities the organization sponsored a skating party and a candy sale. Le Cercle Francais terminated its year with a banquet on May sixteenth.

DRAMATIC AND MUSIC CLUBS

Although music is the outlet of one's emotions and the expression of one's soul, to really appreciate it one must have some knowledge of the history of this most ancient of arts. With the worthwhile purpose of installing musical appreciation into the souls of the student body, the Music Club, organized just three years ago, has done much toward furthering this knowledge. During the year, members of the group visited the home of their adviser, Mrs. Mills, who gave them a most interesting talk on her travels through Mexico, showing them certain of the fascinating objects which draw one to this romantic city. Entertainment was provided by the singing of Mexican songs, after which Mrs. Mills told exciting Mexican stories to the group. The executive ability of Duane Warrick along with his staff consisting of Peggy Pettit, vice-president; Donna Cornell, secretary; and Norma Lofland, treasurer, was responsible for this and many other interesting programs . . . . Similar to the Music Club is the Dramatic Club; for the aim of each of these organizations is culture. During the year the Dramatic Club has fully illustrated its worth and accomplishments in the presentation of "Grandma Pulls the Strings," a play full of hilariously funny situations and characters and "The Goose Hangs High," a three-act production, concerning the sacrifices that parents make for their children, and the way in which the offspring repay their fathers and mothers. The making of a program is a problem for study. It must be an opportunity for the original work of the participants and an education and amusement for the audience. The splendid and enthusiastic attendance at each production this year has proved the wisdom of this policy. Much thanks is due to Miss Costigan, the adviser, and President Bob Freeman; vice-president, Bill Cox; secretary, Jean Renshaw; corresponding secretary, Pat Goode; and treasurer, Bill McCord.

CARTOONIST CLUB . . UTAMARA

In the Cartoonist Club, and the Utamara, we have two of Libbey's more talented groups. These are under the supervision of Miss Hazel Bartley, art instructor. The Utamara Art Society is headed by Evala Dais, president; Charlotte Melchior, secretary; Kay Kirkman, vice-president; and Helen Wickerham, treasurer. Membership in this club, which was formerly open to both boys and girls, is now restricted to the latter. During the course of the year the Utamara has participated in many and varied activities of interest. These included skating and Halloween parties, trips to both the Libbey and the Libbey-Owens-Ford glass companies, and various club projects. Each member made her own emblem which was designed by the president Evala Dais, and consists of an orange dragon with a black "U" forming an interesting background. This club is one of the school's oldest and most admired organizations. The Cartoonist Club is "Libbey's latest" and affords a new channel of expression for those having cartooning talent. A majority of the club's membership is composed of art students, but all talented in the art of cartooning are eligible and welcome to become members. The main function of this club is the publication and circulation of a paper popularly known as the "Krazy Krax." All work on this unique paper is done entirely by the students, even to the composition of the jokes which deal with the student body for the most part. Under the able direction of Miss Bartley and the staff, which includes Clarence Graser, editor; and Joe Dick cartoon editor, the Krazy Krax has gained many readers throughout the school. Three of the paper's features are a fashion page, compiled by Evala Dais, Helen Aiken, and Charlotte Melchior; a page given over to advertising which is drawn by Bob Smith; and several pages of jokes written by Mary Dick. Ed Monahan is business and circulation manager.

GLEE CLUB

Libbey's Glee Club is an organization that is indeed worthy of praise. Owing much to the competent direction of Mr. Holland, music instructor, this group has gained popularity among the students. The Glee Club is also known throughout the city for the fine type of entertainment that it affords. During the year, this organization has given various concerts. One outside concert was given for the Exchange Club, and on March 31 a concert of mixed music was given by the Glee Club and a string ensemble in the Libbey auditorium. A contributing factor to the popularity of the Glee Club is the variety of musical selections the group is capable of presenting. Their programs often include spirituals, semi-classics, and after much persuasion by the students, Mr. Holland permitted a semi-popular number to be included. He is a true exponent of the theory that practice makes perfect. Various solos have been given by the Glee Club members which were exceptionally well done. Although some of the students have taken private instruction, a greater percentage of them are dependent upon the school for their musical instruction. This speaks well for Mr. Holland, for it is exceedingly difficult to organize untrained voices. Every year this group, together with the band and orchestra, participates in the city wide May festival. Participation in this event requires extra drill both in music and in marching. Most festival participants are distinguishable after a day of practice because of the "ultra" rays of "old Sol." The Glee Club has done much to awaken an interest in music within the student body, and in doing so has fulfilled the two-fold purpose of entertainment and instruction.

BAND AND ORCHESTRA

"Guide right!" "Pick up that drum beat!" With commands such as these the day begins for the Libbey Band. Truly, the spirit behind the school is personified in this organization which has done so much to put our school "out in front." If there is anything more inspiring than watching the Blue and Gold march onto the field, it is being one of the marchers. The band has come to the rescue more than once, reminding us that in "Victory or Defeat—Libbey Always." Together with attendance at the football and basketball games, the band has given several fine concerts during the year. The afternoon concerts given during the school hours were greeted with much enthusiasm on the part of the student body. Those given in the evening proved, through the large number of attendants, that the public is also interested in Libbey's band. The band also added pep and color to the pre-football mass meetings. This year several band, orchestra, and Glee Club members have contributed solos to the Friday afternoon Lenten services. For those who appreciate the finer type of music, the schools offer no finer than our own Libbey orchestra. Many of its members have gained state-wide acclaim for their musical accomplishments. The string quartet, which is composed of Virginia Greenawalt, Don Anderson, Marjorie Cordell, and Peter Maniscalco, has done splendid work throughout the year. Libbey's music director, Mr. Holland, has spent much time and effort in the development of the music department, and he has been truly successful in promoting an increased interest in the finer type of music. As Libbey students, we are proud to be represented by two such fine organizations.

THE MATH CLUB AND ARCHITECTURAL CLUB

The young people of today, who study to make their environment better, are the leaders of tomorrow. Particularly to this group belong the members of two unusual clubs at Libbey, the Math Club and the Architectural Club. To promote further interest in mathematics, to give a glimpse of the future which shall serve as an incentive to further study, and to provide interesting problems concerning mathematics are the reasons that this club was organized in the fall with Miss Voorheis and Mr. Harding as the supervisors. A social meeting is held twice a month to bring together the students of a common interest. In April, the outstanding social event was a skating party held at Memorial Hall. The able officers of the club were Anthony Pizza, president; Mary Wittman, vice-president; Bill Mikesell, secretary; Dick Shaw, treasurer; and Don Ottens, sergeant-at-arms . . . . . Being the only club of its kind in this section of the country, the Architectural Club, under the guidance of Mr. Packer, was requested to write an article telling about their interests and projects for the Student Life Magazine. With Ed Cumberworth as the president, the club has made considerable progress this year. Many eminent architects of Toledo were guest speakers at their praiseworthy meetings. The outstanding social event of their year was a dance held on April 5th in Libbey's gym. The other fine and able officers of the club were Nelson Musch, vice-president; Bob Carnell, secretary; Dick Cook, treasurer; and Ed Ritter, sergeant-at-arms. The knowledge of mathematics is necessary for both of these clubs to carry out their interests; and in their endeavors to develop their talents in subjects which are both practical and fascinating both groups deserve much credit. Strange as it may seem to the uninitiated, the world of invention is in great need of the designer who is trained in geometry and archetectonic's skill.

BIOLOGY AND ALCHEMIST CLUBS

Trips! Roasts! Candy Sales! Theater parties! Dances! Speakers! What else could the Biologists and Alchemists want? The Biology club's activities have been many this year. In October a roast was held at Ottawa Park. Because the society has taken as its theme, the study of industries in Toledo concerned with biology, speakers have been called upon, and committees have done investigating. Tuberculosis was discussed by Mrs. Ida Young of Roch Hospital. She suggested that the members take part in fighting this disease. A committee, chosen to visit flower shops, reported on soiless gardening. A dairy was also visited by a committee belonging to this club. The main event of February was the initiation of new members. The assistants of Mr. Rusie and Miss Fiedler, the advisers, were Don Buell, president; Laura Nakaguawa, vice-president; Betty Baker, secretary; Jean Schroeder, treasurer; and Bob Krause, sergeant-at-arms. The Alchemist and Biology Clubs' activities have been somewhat similar. During the year, the Alchemists participated in a trip to the Interlake Iron Company and one to the Owens Illinois Glass Company. These trips were practical applications of knowledge acquired by reading text books. The trip to the iron company was especially interesting to those who had never seen molten iron rush from the furnaces to the molds in troughs. This group has tried to fulfill the ideal of the club, better living through chemistry. The members of this club enjoyed many social activities including a weiner-roast, an after school dance, and a theater party, all of which proved to be successful. The officers were Joseph Sheehy, president; Virginia Crim, vice-president; Naomi Malott, recording secretary; Phyliss Hutchisson, corresponding secretary; and Jennie Beida, treasurer.

ENGINEERING CLUB

Aspiring young men with visions and dreams of the nation's future skyscrapers, bridges, and other marvels of the world of materialism make up the Engineering Club. They realize that many of their cherished aims will fall along the wayside of the road to success; but even so, they strive onward and upward; onward in character building, in those traits which make finer men, and in the formation of sincere friendships; upward in the quality of more majestic and durable constructions. As in years before, Mr. Sterling headed the group and was the main "backbone" of their progress. His practice was to teach the boys to employ their leisure time to the best advantage. He was assisted by a reliable cabinet of officers, which was headed by Roy Beitelschees as president; Richard Friemark served as vice-president; Bob Huff recorded the minutes of many interesting, as well as instructive, meetings; Frank Hojnacki had charge of the treasury; and Gerald Schmidt maintained order as sergeant-at-arms. These leaders kept their fellow members entertained with various speakers and trips, including a journey to Detroit in the spring. The purpose of this trip was to visit the Ford plant, and to enjoy the treasures of the Detroit Museum of Art. The club's social functions consisted of skating parties at Memorial Hall and roasts at the city's various park sites. After the first few months of school had elapsed, and newcomers to the engineering course had had a chance to prove their ability, nineteen new members were voted upon and later initiated into the organization. Then, they too were given the right to wear the yellow membership sweater, which boasts a blue emblem bearing the insignia of the Engineer's Club, and a chance to develop a spirit of cooperation and fellowship.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Commercial Club consists of Libbey's potential secretaries, clerks, and accountants. Its activities, though many are concerned with business, are varied. Early in the season the club had a party at the home of Mrs. Houser, one of the advisers. Games were played and refreshments were served. Another social function of the organization was a skating party, which was held at Memorial Hall on April 8th. At the beginning of the second semester, thirty-two pledges were inducted into the society. The initiation consisted of two parts: the informal, one of fun; and the formal, after which ice cream and cookies refreshed the newly installed members. In February, the club divided into two groups to visit the Libbey-Owens-Ford Plate Glass Company in Rossford on consecutive days of the week. Since Mr. Toepfer, who is now assistant principal of Gunckel School, did not return to Libbey this year, the Commercial Club found it necessary to elect a new adviser. After much deliberation, Mr. Osgood was chosen to aid Mrs. Houser in her administrative duties. Again this year, the banquet climaxed the society's social activities. Dorothy Lewandowski, the general chairman, was assisted by Earlene Sword, who had charge of the arrangements, Leonard Tanalski, who prepared the program, and Norma Hemsoth, who with her committee, chose gifts for the seniors. Besides convivial entertainment, several persons spoke to the club on subjects relating to the business world. Among them was Libbey's Mr. Hosler, who told of his experiences during Christmas vacation in one of Toledo's largest department stores. Shirley Heinz's able executive ability was supplemented by that of Dorothy Lewandowski, vice-president; Muriel Gregor, secretary; Beatrice Jankowski, treasurer; and Casimer Zielinski as sergeant-at-arms.

GIRLS' ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

Boys no longer reign alone as tops in the sports world. Katherine Rawls, Eleanor Holm, Alice Marble, Patty Berg, and numerous other women prominent in sports have made many a masculine heart thud as he witnessed the athletic prowess of the "weaker sex" and realized with dismay that women no longer take a back seat in sports. The Libbey Girls' Athletic Association has many star performers who, we are sure, could give the boys a run for their money in badminton, volleyball, soccer, hockey, ping pong, and basketball—all sports played at various seasons in the organization. The first season sport is volley ball, a fast and furious game, the favorite of many. The triumphant co-victors were the Nameless Nellies and the Sophistocats. The next season is basketball, played somewhat differently from the boys' game; the national pastime, baseball, is the spring sport. The dreams of a member of the Athletic Association always concern a large golden "L," proudly displayed on a dark blue sweater. A system of points determine the happy girls who, having won their letters, are eligible to become a member of the exclusive "L" club, which directs all social activities of the Athletic Association. Health cards play a large and important role in the award system. On the health cards, members record their health habits, grades, school activities, and the number of hours they engage in sports outside of school. Girls who desire to be Junior Gym Leaders, assisting Miss Maher and Mrs. Knight with the regular gym classes, are able to earn from 50-100 points a year for their service. After the long-sought letter has been won, the battle for a chevron begins. A special award is presented at the banquet at the end of the year to girls who have won three chevrons. Miss Maher and Mrs. Knight were the patient and tireless advisers assisted by the cabinet, consisting of Elinor Retzke, president; Jean Knocks, vice-president; Mary Dotson, secretary; and Betty Jo Wickerham, treasurer. The first get-together this year was a hike to Ottawa Park, where tired feet were rested and hungry stomachs were filled to the bursting point. The committee who planned the hike were Delores Harp, chairman, Pearl Anderson, Marion Helmick, Dorothy Crunkilton, and Joyce Menke. The Athletic Association mass-meeting, held prior to the Scott game, must have given the boys lots of pep, for they brought home the bacon with a win over our Brown-Jug rivals. Kate Retzke supervised the program, aided by Marian Corwin, Jane Steiger, Phyllis Bell, Ruth Snyder, and Mary Dotson. Everyone remembers the good time Jean Schroeder and her committee of Lucy Holliger, Betty Harrison, and Naomi Malott, planned for us at the Athletic Skate at Memorial Hall. Who didn't buy some of the candy sold by the girls at various times during the year? An innovation of the past season were the movies, sponsored by the DeVilbiss and Libbey clubs, showing the correct methods of playing golf and other sports. Other clubs in the city were invited to enjoy these films. For all their social affairs, the primary purpose of the club isn't only good, clean, healthy fun and winning letters; it is something deeper and more lasting. The Athletic Association strives to create and further character and good sportsmanship, to learn to take a loss on the chin and come back fighting, and to win without getting swell-headed. It develops a spirit of cooperation and team work, qualities which are sorely needed in the world today.

HOME ECONOMICS

"Preparation for tomorrow" is the theme of the Home Economics Club. Through this organization, the members strive to bring about a closer relationship between the home and school. In former years, it has been their custom to purchase sweaters as the distinguishing mark of membership in the club. This year, however, the members deviated from this established practice by choosing pins. The pin is the emblem of the National Home Economics Society, with which the Libbey group is affiliated, and it has the following significance. The Betty Lamp is the symbol of the Home Economics Clubs. Its base indicates the national and state associations, to which our club owes its beginning; its handle represents the club adviser, the backbone of the group; the chain of the lamp stands for the clubs all over the United States linked together; the oil means the activities created within the club; and the flame symbolizes the programs created from the meetings. That the lamp has, for centuries, been used as the emblem of learning and that the Betty Lamp was used in Colonial days in New England while the household tasks were being done, make it a fitting symbol for the Home Economics Club. During the year, a tea was given to honor the newly initiated members. In February, the group presented a "Sadie Hawkin's Day" dance, following the theme of Al Capp and his comic strip, ""Lil Abner." The club's social year ended with a formal banquet, honoring the senior members. Through the past year, Miss Lloyd, Miss Owen, and Miss Wylie, the organization's advisers, were assisted by the following officers: Elise Koester, president; Mary Lawrence, vice-president; Shirley Arft, secretary; and Bonnie Hayes, treasurer.

L. L. L.

Time marches on, and the Loyal Libbey Lawsonites found themselves at the end of their second eventful year, during which time they had never strayed from maintaining the purpose of their club, which is to create, maintain, and extend throughout the school the highest standards of character, a high scholastic standing, and the finest type of sportsmanship. The reputation of our school depends entirely upon the impressions which our students create, and the Loyal Libbey Lawsonites, under the faithful and never-tiring leadership of Miss Gertrude Payne, firmly believing in this policy, have done much toward establishing it. At several meetings during the year, speakers were invited to talk to the members. Mrs. Mills gave a most worthwhile talk on interesting incidents which made her trip through Mexico so enjoyable; while Mr. Hosler gave the boys some pointers on how to be a success in future life. The club was responsible for bringing to Libbey this year, Mrs. Amos Conn, who reviewed the play entitled "The American Way." Later during the year the student body was entertained by the "Womanless Wedding" which the L. L. L. annually present with the assistance of the Senior Friendship Club. Two of the main attractions of this play were the high-kicking, high-stepping chorus girls, and the famed Buttercup Quartet, a group of winsome lasses with both eye and ear appeal. Much thanks is due the boys for this successful entertainment. The bright spot in their social season was the dance given May 9, and the culmination of it was the Fathers' and Sons' banquet. The officers of the year included their extremely efficient and praise-worthy president, Ned Weber; vice-president, Bob Houser; secretary, Bill Baker; treasurer, Glen Schmakel; and the sergeant-at-arms, Jack Gardner.

Dr. Charles H. Williams

LIBBEY'S BENEFACTOR

Fortunate is Libbey High School in having in Dr. Charles Williams, the brother of our principal, a patron whose generosity knows no bounds. For ten years Dr. Williams has donated annually at least two thousands gifts to be sold at the yearly school carnival. For six years two boys, outstanding in football, in basketball, and in track, respectively, have each been the recipient of a permanent trophy by Dr. Williams. In 1935 he inaugurated the Dr. C. H. Williams honor trophy to be awarded annually to the outstanding girl in the senior class; and in 1938 he established a similar award for the boys. Each year these trophies have the name of the winner engraved upon them and are kept by the boy and the girl for a year, to be returned at the following commencement time. Dr. Williams also furnishes every year, seventeen beautiful and valuable prizes for the Door-Prize Show, the proceeds of which are used for the benefit of the school. Dr. Williams, our good friend, has won a place in our affections for his interest and pride in our school and also for his earnest effort to help keep the standards of Libbey as high as possible.

FOOTBALL

This year's football team was guided along the difficult and treacherous path of its ten-game schedule by a twofold incentive. One was to make Coach Orwig's inaugural year as head coach of the varsity football team a sturdy foundation which his future teams may enlarge with added glories; another was to retain the championship which had come to rest at Libbey through the efforts of last year's team. Inspired by the work of their captain, Lynn Georgia, who scored one of the two touchdowns, Libbey met and defeated Aurora, the state champions of Illinois, who had been undefeated for a period of years, by the score of 14-7. In the opinion of the coaches Libbey started a defense of its city scholastic football championship by thumping the scrappy Woodward eleven, 19-0. The first touchdown was scored by Georgia after the team drove 65 yards downfield. As the third quarter started, Ezra Moore chalked up a touchdown on a long 60 yard scouper. Dentel completed the scoring by an intercepted pass from deep in his own territory. In the game with Central which saw the Irish pile up eleven first downs to five, gain 203 yards by rushing to 91, Libbey's determined eleven took advantage of an interference play to score its touchdown in a well executed reverse to Moore. Georgia's placement decided the game for Libbey. Although out-weighed and overpowered, Libbey's resolution and determination won for Libbey. Again playing Horace Mann after an interval of years, Libbey grabbed an early lead and increased it as the game shifted into high gear. All Libbey's scoring came on line drives. Moore, Trumbull, Georgia, and Furry thrilled the spectators time and again with long jaunts into paydirt. Libbey's next opponent was Scott, the jinx team for previous Cowboy elevens. But on this night Libbey was not to be denied. Led by Captain Lynn Georgia, Libbey scored six points on a pass to Trumbull lateraled to Rieger, who scored. In the final stanza the Cowboys came back with a pair of quick markers to give the game the appearance of a rout. Georgia and Temple finished the scoring for the night to give Libbey a 20-0 victory. Now only Waite and DeVilbiss stood between Libbey and the title. With Georgia again starring, the Cowboys turned back the rangy Garfield squad 21-0. In the way of scoring Georgia had credit for two and Trumbull one. Libbey's accuracy in the final half gained them a well won victory. Against Defiance the Cowboys rose to scoring heights to round out a 41-0 score for their seventh straight victory. In this game was introduced the novel "chain gang" play which amused the spectators immensely. Libbey's clean slate was marred by a tie against Cathedral Latin. Both teams fought bitterly for victory, but neither could break the stout-hearted defense. The final score stood at 7 all. Next week the team traveled to Waite to meet a powerful and undefeated Waite squad. With Waite unleashing all its power, Libbey was defeated 32-6. Although the Cowboys were defeated, they were beaten by one of the best teams in the state and the conqueror of Portsmouth in a post season game and of other nationally famous teams. Our boys fought valiantly, but the opposition was too stubborn. The final game of the season was the Turkey Day battle with our foes from the West side. Although Libbey again met defeat by a score of 14-6, the Cowboys must be praised for the stubborn and rugged defense they pitted against DeVilbiss's smooth running offense. At no time did Libbey despair but fought all the harder when the odds were against them. Coach Orwig's first season as head coach was drawn to a close with a splendid record of seven games won, two lost, and one tied. On Libbey's schedule appeared some of the best teams of this section of the country. We wish to congratulate Mr. Robinson for his part in developing a threatening and powerful backfield. The following players received their "L" awards: Weber, Mealer, Dentel, Schloff, Rieger, Moore, Priest, Hadorn, Esmond, A. G. Pizza, Tappan, Georgia, Harris, Richmond, A. F. Pizza, Kerstetter, Trumbull, Dybala, and Armstrong. The following received A-L-A awards: Krall, Lewis, Ramsdall, Gannon, McClelland, Smith, Phillips, White, Hersland, Temple, and Furry. To our Captain, Lynn Georgia, goes the credit of leading and inspiring the team into victory. We wish to congratulate all the boys on the squad who worked so hard to make the team successful.

Ever since the arrival of Coach Orwig as head coach of basketball, Libbey has become a serious threat as a hardwood quintet in the city league and in this part of the country. This year's team reached the pinnacle of success when they tied Woodward for the city championship. The hard-earned and rightfully deserved championship that was added to Libbey's already numerous athletic honors can be attributed to many sources: the team's undying fighting spirit, the masterful working of the players by Coach Orwig, and the inspiring play of Trumbull and Holden. Libbey opened their season with a belated opening by losing to a powerful downstate Mansfield team 17-29. Libbey then took into camp their next three opponents, Alumni, Central, and Macomber, by the scores, 35-28; 23-18; and 40-26. On the spacious Toledo University floor, the team lost a dull game 11-18 to DeVilbiss. Libbey's fine comeback to down Scott easily with a 32-22 result. Scoring the necessary workers in the last few minutes of the game, Woodward edged out Libbey in a heart thriller 24-28. Sparked by the fine offensive and defensive play of Trumbull and Holden, the team rose to great heights to run up a string of seven successive victories against the best of competition. Central and Waite fell under the mighty onslaught of the Fighting Cowboys, 35-30 and 29-24 respectively. To avenge defeats suffered at the early portion of the season, the Libbey quintet played excellent basketball to topple the fast moving fives of Woodward and DeVilbiss In a game that was most enjoyable to the spectators and Libbey students alike, Woodward's powerful offensive was stopped by Libbey's air-tight defense 27-23. The sterling performance of Holden and Schmakel made possible this Libbey victory. While holding DeVilbiss to a mere 16 points, Libbey tossed 27 points through the hoop. Although Macomber was beaten 25-23, the margin necessary for victory came in the fading moments of the game. Scott was defeated by a five-point margin 21-16. To play their next game the team travelled to Port Huron. Libbey added Port Huron to their list of defeated opponents 23-13. The score closed with Waite's snapping Libbey's string of victories at the University Fieldhouse by the score 23-28. In the tournament. Clay, a dark horse, proved to be better than Libbey by inflicting a 27-31 defeat. Libbey completed a treacherous schedule winning eleven, losing five, and becoming co-champions with Woodward. Libbey owes a great debt of gratitude to Dr. R. C. Young and Dr. Ralph Ladd, who constantly and never ceasingly rendered their services to the boys, striving to keep them in excellent physical condition not only during the football and basketball season but at all other times.
